All previously pending claims have been canceled. New claims 30-50 have been added.

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claims 30-36, drawn to a method for treating endotoxic shock in a subject.

Group II, claims 37-42, drawn to a method for treating septicemia in a surgery patient.

Group III, claims 43-46 (in part), 47, 50 (in part), drawn to a method for treating microbial infection in a subject caused by a bacteria specified in claim 47.

Group IV, claims 43-46 (in part), 48, 50 (in part), drawn to a method for treating microbial infection in a subject caused by a parasite specified in claim 48.

Group V, claims 43-46 (in part), 49, 50 (in part), drawn to a method for treating microbial infection in a subject caused by a fungus specified in claim 49.

Under lack of unity rules, unity of invention exists only when there is a technical relationship among the claimed inventions involving one or more of the same or corresponding special technical features. The expression "special technical features" is defined as meaning those technical features that define a contribution which each of the inventions, considered as a whole, makes over the prior art. The "contribution over the prior art" is considered with respect to novelty and inventive step. See PCT Rule 13.1 and 13.2; see also MPEP 1850.

Here, the common corresponding technical feature is the administration of lithium to patients. However, the administration of lithium chloride to an infected patient is already taught by the prior art, as evidenced by the previously cited WO 98/17288 (claims 1-6, for example). Thus, it is not the common or corresponding feature which makes a contribution over the prior art, as required for unity of invention. Rather, the contribution, if any, would potentially come from the specific selection of conditions and patients to be treated, which is evidence of lack of unity based on such specific conditions. Thus, there is no technical relationship among the claimed inventions involving one or more of the same or corresponding special technical features.

For these reasons, the claims lack unity of invention.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected invention or species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions have unity of invention (37 CFR 1.475(a)), applicant must provide reasons in support thereof.

Applicant may submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. Where such evidence or admission is provided by applicant, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
